

I Never liked to write or read

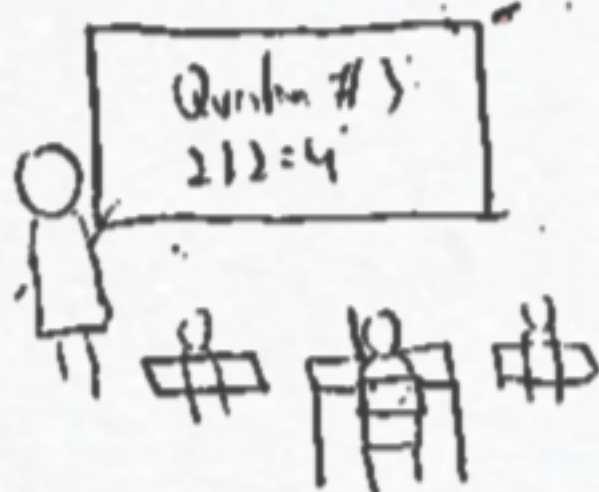

I mean the first book
I remember was my math practice book I got from my mom when I was Young.

- My earliest memory of reading comes when I came to United States

I started like math much more since it was much more interesting

I was able to understand math

But I only saw red marks in my English classes

Eventually my English got better as I progress through primary elementary to high school

Eventually I needed to write college essay

I think it was the best essay I wrote

But my mom said

"I think your sisters is better"

Even my best result was outshone by others

I still don't like to read or write so I only found to read books...

The end
